

Dreamcatcher & Shadow Seeker

With over 22 books in print in five countries, Jen McVeity is also Australian head of the Society of Children's Book Writers and Illustrators. Dreamcatcher the first book in her Green Guerrilla series won the Family Award, was shortlisted for the Environment Award and made the New York Library's Best Books list. Shadow Seeker the sequel (which can be read first) was bid for by the top four publishers in Australia. Released in February, the first print sold out in a week.

You try delivering a rat to the presenter of TV's biggest news program.

If she spends more than five minutes in her family's company, Tess Robertson gets into a full scale fight. So now she's decided to take on an easier fight – that of saving the environment. She and her team of Green Guerrillas hang 'quit' banners from polluting smoke stacks, rescue hundreds of lab rats from the dissecting knife and make front page news acting out a seal cub slaughter - right in front of the mayor.

Now Tess wants to stop a billion-dollar paper mill setting up in town and pumping deadly quantities of dioxin into the air.

And all she has to help her are the three Green Guerrillas, a reckless kid sister and one dark-eyed karate kicking photographer who won't take 'no' for an answer.

'McVeity's page-turning storytelling will captivate and inspire...' (The Age, 10 February 2002)

'McVeity's writing captures the reader from the very first word and doesn't let them go... Eco-vandals watch out. Jen has empowered a new generation of eco-warriors.' (Robert N. Stephenson, Altair Australia)

'I did not think it possible to surpass Dreamcatcher, but Jen McVeity has done it! She has touched kids' hearts and showed them that their dreams and passions are understood ...' (Dr Anne Flood, Director, Tall Poppies)
